The Egg, set on the coastline of Accra, Ghana, tells the real life story of Kobe and his friend wOne. Kobe sets the scene by sharing his sentiments about the black on black situation in Ghana. Through the eyes of these men the director shares a captivating encounter, which asks the audience to think hard about this underlining issue that plagues Ghana. What makes this film different is its bitter-sweet sentiments and the ability for the audience to dive deep into Ghanaian cultural undertones.
